The grid is an interactive, interactive, interactive grid. You need to interact with the grid in some way to make the grid do something. Picross Touch tells you which cell to press. Steady-state kinetic studies of the reaction of  $\text{Cl}^-$  with  $\text{O}_2$  in deuterium oxide. The steady-state kinetics of the reaction of  $\text{Cl}^-$  with  $\text{O}_2$  in  $\text{D}_2\text{O}$ , catalyzed by  $\text{Na}^+$  or  $\text{K}^+$ , are studied. The formation of the reactive  $\text{Cl}_2^-$  has been isolated by extraction into  $\text{Cl}^-$  bearing solvents. The  $\text{K}^+$ -catalyzed reaction is substantially slower than the  $\text{Na}^+$ -catalyzed one, and a large kinetic isotope effect ( $\text{KIE} = 10.6$ ) is observed. The rate of the  $\text{Cl}_2^-$  formation is strongly affected by the concentration of  $\text{O}_2$ , indicating that  $\text{Cl}_2^-$  is probably not an intermediary. A rapid steady-state kinetic study has been carried out to confirm this interpretation.

Insight is a weekly podcast series all about digital art and design, offering up everything you need to know as you set out to create or complete a piece. In each weekly episode, Mo Simon, director of Studio Alert, and I will collaborate on design content to offer various perspectives on contemporary design and the design community. The posts will encompass anything from our individual perspectives on the pros and cons of particular forms of digital design -- whether that's Illustrator, InDesign, Adobe Edge or the web -- to interview segments with industry leaders and frequent guests. We will also feature custom interviews with artists, illustrators, writers, and designers of all kinds about works in progress, hopes and ambitions, and more. Insight currently includes a number of recurring segments, with more to come! * This week's edition features Filippo Mocca, who runs robopencil.wordpress.com. In this episode, we chat about the time-tested insights of the great Walter Hawkins and how to steal his best ideas to create an amazing piece of work. Walter Hawkins is the founder of Hawkins Teaching Brush, and has taught people how to paint for more than 60 years -- he's a great source of inspiration for all kinds of working artists and designers. He's an authority on learning and teaching, and he was recently commissioned by the Smithsonian to sit down with artist Nikki McClure and produce a documentary on his life and work. We talk about reasons to create in multiple mediums, where to steal the best bits of Hawkins's work, and how to make your top decision-making skills work for you. From this week's interview, we take you on a brief excursion into Hawkins's personal analog process sketchbooks to demonstrate how to share an essential part of your creative process with your clients. * Listen to the episode here: Creating is an imperfect process of making our own decisions and finding some moments of clarity that emerge as we learn from our mistakes, hit our D.I.Y. highs, and revisit favorite childhood memories. Overall, it's a hard journey to make our way as creative people, but when we can bring our vision and set of ideas to life, the business of it all will be worth it. * If you're interested in learning more about Hawkins, this collection of videos offers a lovely and wide-ranging look at his
